AGITATION IS REVIVED NOW

Many Favor Paid Fire Department
Following Damage Done to O.
M. Dale Home Monday

VOTED TO CREATE ONE

Ordinance Never Drawn up Through
Action Was Taken at Meeting January 19, 1915

Considerable agitation has been heard in favor of a paid fire department as advocated and planned by the city council, but never put through, following the fire yesterday which did considerable damage to the Oliver M. Dale residence.

On January 19, 1915 the city council instructed the city attorney to revise the present fire department ordinance by making a paid department of three regular men, the chief and a man to operate the fire engine. The members of the council, with the exception of Councilman Seudder, who did not vote on the proposition voted for the drawing up of such an ordinance.

It is pointed out that while the fire department did good work at the Dale fire yesterday, it could have done better had more of the firemen been on the job. The fire bell is not in working order but the fire alarm system works just the same. Yesterday the driver went to the fire without any assistance and it was necessary to depend upon volunteers. With a three-man department the work of fighting the fire yesterday would have been easier.

The plan as advocated by the council would be to do away with the volunteers. Three men would be stationed at the fire station all the time and these men, with the aid of the fire chief and the engineer for the fire engine should be able to fight most any fire, or at least as good as the ten or eleven volunteers do at present.

The criticism of the fire department has been friendly and the remark has frequently been heard that a city the size of Rushville should have a better fire department. It is pointed out that a fire department, the same as any other kind of an organization, needs a leader to successfully fight a fire. Yesterday Mayor Bebout took charge of the work, when it was learned that Chief Easley was out of the city. With a paid fire department the men would be trained and would know just what to do without having to wait for orders.

The motion for a paid fire department was made by Councilman Brann, who has since resigned from the council. Councilmen Lee, Mauzy and Wagoner were in favor of the change and it was urged by Fire Chief Easley. For some unknown reason the ordinance changing the fire department has never been presented although it has been discussed several times.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 17.—
"Has a bill collector the right to carry a gun?
This is the question before state officials today, following the receipt of the request for an opinion by J. A. Schmahl, secretary of state.

ALWAYS TURN IN AN ALARM

This Request is Made so Plant Will Put on Fire Pressure.

The fire Monday at the home of O. M. Dale called to the attention of city officials the fact that so few people turn in the alarm when there is a fire. The city water and light plant has a gong which rings when an alarm is turned in, which is a signal for putting on fire pressure. Otherwise, it is not known at the plant when there is a fire. When firemen began throwing water Monday at the Dale home, the fire pressure was not yet on.

AUTOS COLLIDE AT ROAD INTERSECTION

Taylor Warfield is Rendered Unconscious and Jesse Guire Suffers Severe Cuts.

BOWEN MACHINE DAMAGED

A corn field shielding the view of a road was largely responsible for an automobile accident yesterday afternoon in which Taylor Warfield was severely injured and Will Bowen and Jesse Guire were badly shaken up and frightened. The accident also resulted in great damage to the Bowen touring car.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the two roads at Hawkins' Corner, south of New Salem. Warfield, Guire and Bowen were coming north on the New Salem pike and because of the corn field failed to see Ed George approaching from the east in his machine. The George machine struck the Bowen machine a little past the center of the body and both machines turned completely around. The impact was terrific, both machines were badly damaged.

Mr. Warfield was rendered unconscious and did not come to for several hours. Guire was thrown over a barbed wire fence and sustained many cuts and bruises. Mr. Bowen escape uninjured.

Landed Farmers With Wheat Un-
threshed, Body Blow Monday
Night in Form of Bad Rain.

ONE OF THE PERSISTENT KIND

Average Farmer Approached About
Wheat Will Screw up Face
Into Hard Scowl.

When asked about his wheat nowadays, the average farmer screws up his face into a hard scowl and turns his head the other way.

The average farmer is one whose wheat is moulding in the fields. He thought he was going to have some fair weather this week, but he now has another thought coming. He has been thinking for two or three weeks that he would have enough sunshine to get his wheat threshed, but he has always been mistaken.

Every day it rains, Mr. Average Farmer thinks that it just can't rain any more and that will be the last one. He was certain Sunday and Monday that the rains were all history now and that he would save what was left of his damaged wheat crop. Wrong again.

It began raining Monday evening about dusk and rained hard until well into the night. It was one of those persistent, beating rains that keeps on regardless. It put an end to what threshing had been started Monday afternoon. According to reports reaching Rushville today, the rain was general all over Rush county and there were no threshing machines at work.

The bright sun of Sunday and Monday gave the farmer with his wheat unthreshed a new hold on life, as it were. He was overjoyed to think he had a chance of saving what was left of the much abused crop. He had visions of getting out better on the crop than he expected.

The same thing happened last Saturday. Many companies had expected to start threshing Sunday, but the rain stepped in and removed all chances of getting at the damaged wheat.

It was stated on good authority today that there was some wheat in the shock in Rush county that would never be threshed because it would not be worth the time and expense required.

If the present weather continues the entire corn crop of the state will be ruined, was the prediction made by a farmer living south of Rushville.

"The rain has caused the corn to shoot up over nine feet, and stalks are becoming top heavy. If the rain does not stop they will break off and the crop will be spoiled. Not only that the stalks have one to seven shoots, when they should never have more than two," said the farmer. "If there are a few good sunny days the crop may be saved, but if not there is no chance for it.

"Corn should have good, solid roots, and should grow up almost as thick at the top as at the bottom, with about fourteen leaves distributed evenly over it, but that is not the case this year. The corn stalks are thick at the top, with a spread of foliage, and thin at the bottom, and as a result they are becoming top heavy," concluded the farmer.

He recalled the fact that forty years ago Indiana suffered the loss of its corn crop on account of just such weather conditions have existed this summer.

The Pythian Sisters will hold a meeting tomorrow night. All members are urged to be present as business of importance will be transacted.

GET INFERTILE EGGS, SLOGAN

U. S. Department of Agriculture Experts Here Today Explain That
They Do Not Spoil Easily.

SHOWS GOOD AND BAD ONES

Experts Explain That Hen is Not
Causing $50,000,000 Loss Yearly, But Fault is in Handling.

"Remove the roosters from your flock and produce infertile eggs."

That is the slogan of the experts here with the egg candling, packing and chilling demonstration car sent out by the United States department of agriculture, which was on the siding at the water and light plant today.

"The hen is doing her part," said H. L. Shrader, who is in charge of the car, "but the people are at fault. The handling of eggs is responsible for the loss of fifty million dollars each year in the United States. The infertile egg is not so likely to go bad and that is the reason we are boosting the production of it.

"The failure to handle eggs correctly to prevent loss contributes to the high cost of living. Grocers tell us they buy all sorts of eggs from farmers, candle them and discard the bad ones. Therefore, they lose money on eggs. They have to make it up on groceries. The farmer who has no eggs to sell thinks the groceries are high and perhaps may buy of a mail order house because he thinks he is getting goods cheaper."

The experts with the car put in a full day demonstrating egg candling. They had an interested crowd of spectators all day. Most all of the grocers visited the car some time during the day. There were some local grocers waiting for the car to open this morning at eight-thirty o'clock.

The experts showed how to candle eggs and how to tell when an egg is bad and when it is good. Housewives should know, it was stated, that when there is an air space in the egg and when the yolk flattens out after the shell is broken, the egg is aged. When the shell is broken, the yolk of a fresh egg will stand up in a semi-circle.

Blood rings appear only on fertile eggs. They are caused by the death of the germ and are a sure sign of age. The egg with a blood ring is not fit for food, it was stated during the demonstration. The germ of the fertile egg dies for the lack of heat when it is allowed to lie around in the weeds or some place in the barn.

It was explained that mouldy eggs are not fit for food; in fact, are dangerous to eat. The mould often penetrates to the white of the egg and causes it to turn green. The same germs cause this change, it was stated, as bring on gangrene in a wound.

"Often we are asked," said H. J. Sullivan, who was making the demonstration, "if a speck of blood on the yolk or in the white of an egg is cause for calling the egg bad. It is not. That blood comes from a broken blood vessel in the hen and is just as pure as the egg.

"It is often feared that a chocolate-colored yolk is impure, but it is not. The color of the yolk is due to the food the hen eats. If she is fed on red or yellow corn, her yolk will be dark yellow. If her feed is white corn or wheat, the yolk will be a very light yellow. When she has green food, the yolk is frequently a dark greenish-yellow or chocolate. But green color in the white is especially to be avoided for re-

GALVESTON IS SAFE NOW

Water in Streets of Texas City is Receding Today.

(By United Press.)

New Orleans, August 17.—Galveston is safe and the water in the streets is receding, according to a wireless message direct from Galveston received here today. The message estimated the loss due to the flood at more than one million dollars. Five persons were said to have perished. Two huge fires are now monopolizing the attention of the fire department. The government transport McClellan was reported to have been damaged.

AMERICAN REPLY IS MADE PUBLIC

Agrees With Germany That Each
Designate Expert to Fix Idemnities For Loss of Wm. P. Frye.

ACTION WITHOUT PRECEDENT

(By United Press.)

Washington, August 17.—The American reply to the German government on the case of the schooner William P. Frye, American merchant liner sunk by a German sea raider, was made public today by the state department. The United States, in its reply, agrees to the proposition of the German government that "each of the two governments designate an expert to fix the indemnities for the vessel."

Acceptance of such an arrangement is without precedent as the American contention was that the vessel was sunk without legal justification. The American government also submitted the Prussian-American treaty involved in the case to a board of arbitration under the Hague agreements.

"In this way," said the note, "the question of indemnities and treaties can partly be settled."

THOUSAND MAY HAVE BEEN LOST

British Transport Royal Edward,
Enroute to Dardanelles, Sunk
by German Submarine

OVER 1,400 ON THE VESSEL

(By United Press.)

London, Aug. 17.—One thousand lives are believed to have been lost yesterday by the sinking of the British transport Royal Edward enroute to the Dardanelles by a German submarine.

The Royal Edward carried 1,350 soldiers, 52 military officers and a crew of about 250 men. An official statement from the admiralty said "600 are known to be rescued." The Royal Edward was sunk in the Aegean sea Saturday, presumably while enroute to the Dardanelles.

This is the second transport lost by Great Britain since the war began. In an engagement off the Turkish Asia Minor coast, near the Gulf of Smyrna, a transport was sunk several weeks ago, but without heavy loss of life, according to the admiralty statement.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Dale have moved into the home of late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reeve until their home, which was damaged by fire Monday, can be repaired.

LEO M. FRANK LYNCHED BY MOB

Young Jew Convicted of Murder of
Mary Phagan Spirited From
State Prison Farm Today.

NO CLEWS TO THE LYNCHERS

Frank Taken to Point Near Birthplace of Girl he Was Accused of Killing and Hanged.

(By United Press.)

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17.—Leo M. Frank was lynched by a mob early today near Marietta.

The young Jew, who was recently convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, 15 years old, was taken from the hospital at the Milledgeville State Prison farm just before midnight after the guards were overpowered.

The lynching party speeded in automobiles to within a short distance of the birthplace of Mary Phagan and hanged him to a tree.

Angered because Former Governor Slaydon commuted Frank's death sentence to life imprisonment—his last official act—the mob, presumed to be composed of Marietta men, decided to take the law into its own hands.

The dead man's wrists were locked with handcuffs and laced to his body. The rope about his neck had broken open the wound where he was recently slashed by a fellow prisoner and blood had streamed down on his prison suit.

The chief of police at Marietta gave out the following statement: "No clues have been obtained to the lynchers. Every effort is being made to apprehend them."

While Frank's body was still dangling from the tree, no one could be found with authority to cut it down. The coroner refused to do so in the absence of the sheriff. Finally, shortly before noon, after a crowd of many thousand people in the automobiles and on foot had gathered for miles about the tree, the body was cut down.

Speeches were made. One man urged that the body be mutilated. Judge Morris spoke in opposition to this, urging that order be maintained.

After the enormous crowd had voted against mutilation, the body was lowered from the tree and lifted into a wagon which started for Marietta, where it was announced the inquest would begin at once.

But mutterings in favor of mutilation gained strength again. Judge Morris ran his auto alongside the wagon, lifted the corpse into his car and sped towards Atlanta.

Some two hundred autos gave chase.

At Smyrna a newspaper man leaped from Judge Morris' machine

SPEED OF ALLIES IN LANDING AT DARDANELLES AMAZES GREEKS

Getting Foothold on Gallipoli Under Fierce Fire Took Forty Hours Instead of Seven Days.

A GRAPHIC and stirring description of the landing of the allied army at the Dardanelles is given in a dispatch from Athens by an American war correspondent who has seen the reports of the foreign military observers accompanying the British and French forces.

The general staff of the Greek army, he says, regards the achievement as one of the most remarkable operations of the war. The troops accomplished their landing in forty hours, forcing their way despite heavy losses under hot fire, while thousands struggled in the glare of searchlights and amid a terrific cannonade to put the supplies ashore.

In the reports of the military attaches two features are mentioned as standing out—the careful, systematic and detailed preparation, and then the surprising speed with which the disembarkation was carried out and the foothold on the soil seized.

The plan of action was arranged eight weeks before at a series of military conferences in London, Paris and Malta. Every detail of it went through without a hitch. Concentration of troops and supplies began immediately. Thousands of men left England secretly, under cover of darkness, crossed the English channel and proceeded to Marseilles to embark on transports for Egypt.

Army Silently Formed.

At the same time those French troops that could be spared from Europe also were transported to the land of the Nile. Australian and New Zealand contingents reached Egypt through the Suez canal. Finally there were available more than 110,000 British troops, including Australians, New Zealanders and Indians, and about 60,000 French soldiers, including Algerians.

Simultaneously a monster staff was ransacking both countries for supplies. Every preparation was made for maintaining a great army for a long time on foreign soil.

Alexandria was the first advanced base. It is 700 miles from the Dardanelles. A nearer base was absolutely necessary. Consequently the British fleet suddenly occupied the islands of Mudros, Tenedos and Imbros. Tenedos is only twelve miles from Kum Kale and Sidel Bahr.

England asserts a right of occupation. Greece took the islands from the Turks in the first Balkan war. The London conference stipulated that the islands should be returned to Turkey. Turkey refused to sign the treaty, and then Greece consequently continued to occupy the islands. There was a mild Greek protest when the British took possession, but it was overcome. England promised to give back the islands at the end of the war and even yet the civil administration remains Greek.

Tenedos as Supply Depot.

A fleet of cargo boats freighted to the islands huge quantities of food, scores of heavy siege guns and thousands of boxes of ammunition. Although most of the supplies destined for the use of the troops after they landed in Turkey were taken to the islands of Tenedos and Mudros, the troops themselves remained in Egypt until the final rush for the Dardanelles.

When eventually one morning before daybreak the transports steamed out of Alexandria they made a line nearly eighteen miles long. The admiral at Mudros was advised by wireless. At Mudros and at Tenedos were stored thousands of tons of supplies. Every available warehouse was filled to the roof. Monster piles of boxes and bales extended along the beach. At once the work of loading hundreds of lighters, requisitioned from half the ports of the eastern Mediterranean, was pushed to completion.

A little less than forty-eight hours after it left Alexandria the fleet of transports, convoyed by a dozen battleships and half a hundred destroyers, passed Tenedos. Three hours later powerful tugs, towing long strings of lighters, steamed out of Tenedos and Mudros and fell into line many miles to the rear of the transport fleet.

Started at Daybreak.

Just at daybreak ten or twelve boats loaded to the gunwales with khaki clad soldiers wearing big tropical helmets put off from each transport to be the first to land on the tip of Gallipoli. Steam launches from the battleships towed the boats to shore in strings of five or six. It was three-quarters of a mile to shore.

Half the distance had been covered when a perfect hail of bullets and shrapnel spattered among the small boats. The men did not reply. They could see nothing to fire at. The boats were run on to the beach. The men jumped out, ankle deep in water. They ran up the beach for seventy-five yards and threw themselves prone on the sand behind any little hummock they could find. Three or four men remained in each boat and poled it frantically back to the steam launch, which took it in tow and headed for the transports for another load.

Hour after hour men piled ashore from the transports. The line of disembarkment was more than a mile long.

The second detachment ran forty or fifty feet in advance of the first landing party before throwing themselves flat on the sand. The third party went the same distance in advance of the second, and so on.

At first the firing line was only a mile broad. It was gradually lengthened to cover the whole nose of the peninsula. Finally the line was more than two miles long.

The first detachment took terrible punishment. Dead and wounded were everywhere. The wounded had little show. There was no place to move them. They received rough first aid treatment and were dragged to the shelter of some small hills. They suffered greatly later in the day from the sun and heat. At the close of the day the medical corps got supplies ashore and erected temporary hospitals under the lee of a cliff.

Losses Were Terrific.

Every man was at last ashore, and an advance in open order was made. Slowly but surely the allies' army covered ground. The French had landed at Kum Kale, on the Asiatic side. That was only a trick to keep the Turks guessing as to where the real attack was to be made.

While the land forces were striving mightily to make their position secure the great battleships strung out from each end of the transport fleet thundered out fire and shell at a tremendous rate. The terrific bombardment and the vicious attacks of the Australian troops won the day. The Turks retreated behind their second line of defense. They left many dead and wounded on the field. They also lost many prisoners.

The British troops built rude breastworks and prepared to hold the captured ground at any cost. The first day's losses were terrific. More than 2,000 were dead.

When the position on Gallipoli peninsula became secure the big part of the disembarkment started. Great strings of lighters, piled high with all sorts of war materials, were beached. Thousands of sweating, swearing, half clad men toiled frantically in the hot afternoon sun. As accompaniment they had the cheerful music of a dozen or more battleships banging away at the Turk entrenchments.

Many Fell Exhausted.

At dark the men juggling supplies were relieved. It was time too. They were nearly done for. Most of them dropped exhausted in the warm sand. Also there had been some suffering because of the water. Emphatic orders had been issued prohibiting men from drinking water from Turkish wells. All the water for the men came from the ships. The small boats were so occupied they had little time for water, consequently all the afternoon there was a constant cry for "water, water."

But the work did not stop. Thousands of fresh men leaped to relieve their exhausted comrades. At night half a hundred searchlights made the beach as light as day. The men worked in shifts. Toward morning the commissary got some portable kitchens ashore, and the men had breakfast.

The second day of the landing operations was, however, its real trial. From morning until dark 15,000 men worked to their utmost to get the last of the supplies ashore. Men struggled alternately with heavy siege guns and with barbed wire. The men at the front, frantically engaged in digging trenches, used up the barbed wire as fast as it could be taken to them. But the task was done.

Forty hours of terrible, life taking toil did it—that is, the time it took the British forces to land on the extremity of Gallipoli peninsula. It was really one of the remarkable incidents of the war. The operation was a marvel of perfection as to systematic preparation and execution. The Greek general staff had estimated that if the allies succeeded in landing at all the attempt would take them seven days.

JUST TO ANNOY THE SUEZ CANAL

That's The Purpose of Kaiser Keeping Small Number of Troops in That Region

ENGLISH MUST BE ON GUARD

Only Remnant Remains of Turk-German Expedition Sent There Last January

BY HENRY WOOD (U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Constantinople, (By Courier to Dedeagatch and thence by mail to New York) July 16.—Somewhere down in the interior of Syria are several thousand German officers and men who must remain there either until the war ends or until Kaiser Wilhelm changes his mind. It is their duty to annoy the Suez Canal.

With neither sufficient men nor sufficient war material at their disposal to do any damage they must nevertheless make enough showing to force the English at all times to keep large contingents of troops in Egypt for the defense of the canal. They must hold themselves back in the desert out of harm's way, substituting as best they can, until a favorable moment presents itself. Then they must swoop down on the canal, and by capturing some lone vessel or in some other way obstruct navigation if only for a few hours. Then they must dash back into safety of the interior of the desert.

These men are the remnants of the tragic Turk-German expedition which was sent last January against the canal.

As a recompense for their faithfulness an officer or a soldier is occasionally given permission to come up to Constantinople for a renewal of contact with civilization. From these officers and men I learned a few still unpublished details of the disaster of last January.

When the expedition finally approached the canal after having pushed its way across the desert for weeks carrying pontoons for crossing the canal and transporting the bulk of its water in tin cans, the plan of attack decided upon was that usually employed by the Austrians. Simultaneous attacks were to be begun by the right and left wing in order to distract and engage the enemy and then the main body of troops comprising the center was to make the dash for crossing the canal.

To the surprise of all the attacks met with such little resistance that the center in its mad rush to get across did not stop to build a pontoon bridge but leaping into the pontoons themselves rowed to the other side. There the mystery was explained. Along the front of the canal were found whole lines of trenches which the English evidently had abandoned in haste at the approach of the expedition. Into these trenches the Turks piled and began at once establishing their position when suddenly the English artillery stationed miles away but having the precise range of the trenches poured into them a terrible fire.

A mad rush was made for the other side of the canal where the survivors gathering up their wounded and loading them onto camels pushed back into the desert to a point where Dr. Ward, head of the surgical department of the American protestant college at Beirut had come down with a Red Cross unit. There the wounded were taken care of until it was possible for them to return north.

and phoned his paper here, giving the alarm.

When the body was cut down, several men disregarded Judge Morris' pleadings and stamped on the face with their heels.

Many predicted a clean sweep of officials at Milledgeville prison. Although the prison was equipped with guards and protections to withstand a siege, the prisoner was taken without a struggle or a shot.

After waiting several hours for a report from the prisoner and receiving none, Governor Harris left for Fitzgerald where he is to make an address. He left before hearing that Frank was lynched.

He issued the following statement:

"I am both shocked and grieved. I feel that a great wrong has been done and that our state will not look with approval on such an act."

The armed men arrived in the vicinity of the prison farm practically unnoticed and proceeded methodically to their business. All means of wire communication from the institution of Milledgeville, three miles away, were destroyed and all wires, except one telephone line, from Milledgeville, also were cut.

Five men were sent to the house of Warden J. T. Smith, awakened him and made him prisoner. At the same time a small squad of men went to the home of J. M. Burke, superintendent of the farm, Burke was forced to go with them to the gate nearest the dormitory, where it was believed Frank was kept. The two guards on duty there were ordered, while guns were leveled on them, to open the gates.

The party then rushed in, quickly got Frank and hurried him to one of the waiting automobiles. He was forced down into the car, while a member of the party is said to have flourished a rope in front of him.

Without delay those who had been guarding Warden Smith left him and joined the party at the gates. The automobiles then started off swiftly in a northerly direction.

(By United Press.)

Milledgeville, Ga., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Leo M. Frank, though still prostrated, left here at 11 a. m. today for Athens where an uncle lives. As she took the train she was told her husband had been lynched at Marietta. Apparently she was steeled for the news for she bore up well. A physician and nurse accompanied her.

She was told of his danger before it was known he had been killed. Before the prison officials could finish the first sentence, she swooned and went into violent convulsions.

It was only with greatest difficulty that she was revived.

Miss Louise Hogsett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hogsett, was hurried to Indianapolis Monday and underwent an operation for appendicitis. She was afflicted suddenly.

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienist, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in various organs, tissues, joints. One becomes flabby, obese, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face.

"But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects, has been the problem. Fortunately, there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called 'vegetable calomel' because of its effectiveness—though, of course it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in 'sentinel' tablets—that's the name—and their use is not followed by weakness or exhaustion. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Sentinel tablets, which may be procured from any druggist—a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

Chief Cause of Pimples, Blotches, Sallow Skin

(Messenger of Health.)

Unightly eruptions, pimples, boils, blotches, sallow or muddy skin, usually are due to a sluggish liver, a constipated bowel—and a polluted blood stream as a consequence. How foolish in such cases to resort to outward applications, which can never have natural, permanent results. If more people only knew it, there is a very simple remedy, to be found in any drug store, which is as effective as it is harmless and quick acting. It is an old formula, long recognized by the medical profession, which has been put in tablet form, and at such small cost no one need now be deprived of its wonderful benefits.

"Sentinel tablets"—that's the name—are entirely vegetable and there's no habit-forming ingredient. You need only get about a dime's worth, and swallow one at bedtime to realize there's nothing else quite so good for the purpose. The action in the morning is so easy, so soothing, and instead of a weakening after-effect, you feel truly refreshed and invigorated. Sentinel tablets are not only the finest remedy known for constipation and torpid liver, but offer the sanest, most sensible treatment for complexion difficulties of the character mentioned.

Great Demand for New Constipation Remedy

They say that the advent of the "sentinel tablet" as a vegetable substitute for calomel has resulted in an extraordinary demand for this reliable product. It seems to have made a hit particularly with those afflicted with chronic constipation, who were quick to recognize its advantages over calomel and the usual laxatives.

Sentinel tablets, aside from their efficacy, doubtless owe their success largely to a tendency to aid in bringing about natural functioning—instead of encouraging the "cathartic habit." Also, instead of injuring the membranous lining of the organs involved, they exert a healing influence. Instead of weakening, they add tone to the intestinal wall. And they work so easily and gently, they are of course preferred on this account to the violently acting purgatives. Their inexpressiveness is another reason for the popularity of sentinel tablets. One need procure only a dime's worth, and take one tablet upon retiring, to be convinced that the ideal remedy for constipation, torpid liver, and their many evil consequences, has finally been found.—Druggists Review.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. It Can't be Done Bill.

Not as much because of the importance of the Progressive who has returned to the Republican party, but because of what he says, the letter written by Frank C. Schaeffer, one time member of the Progressive county committee of Suffolk county, N. Y., announcing his return to the Republican party, is extremely interesting and of more than passing interest.

The letter was addressed to Ormsby McHarg, formerly one of the Taft campaign workers, but later a Progressive. He has rejoined the Republican party now, however, and is lending his efforts to the movement to unite the two factions.

Mr. Schaeffer's letter follows:

"Dear Mr. McHarg: I have just become acquainted with the 'get together' work you are doing through Bill White's article in the current number of the Metropolitan.

"May God speed your work and much thanks to Bill for advertising it.

"The democratic party's method of cutting the high cost of living results in cutting out the 'living'; ipso facto the 'high cost' disappears. The method is very efficacious, but tough on our kiddies.

"Bill wants us to give, to serve, to broaden life and gladden living, but how can we when the country is in hock, initiative and enterprise have left the land and theorists and quacks are in the saddle?

"It can't be done, Bill. There can be no real social service when the means are lacking.

"What the country needs and wants in the presidential chair is another William McKinley and all that he stood for.

"When the great European war is over and the buying power of European nations has disappeared, then God help our working people if they have not the bulwark of a protective tariff against the enormous flood of cheap goods that will be dumped on our shores.

"Every sane progressive recognizes and admits that these are the political conditions that confront us today and that the overwhelming election of a protectionist President in 1916 can only be assured through the agency of a reunited Republican party.

"That is why I am this day forwarding my resignation as a member of the progressive county committee of Suffolk county, N. Y., and will hereafter devote my efforts to the triumphant election of a republican President in 1916."

Misused Words.

The unneutral section of the American press is jubilantly hopelessly. "What Answer Can We Make?" inquires one of these "moulters of public opinion," falling prostrate before the arguments of Sir Edward Grey in the matter of the preservation of America's rights on the high seas.

Not so Senator Hoke Smith. He declares in a ringing statement published here:

"The next note to Great Britain must say that the Government of the United States can no longer submit to the illegal interruption of its commerce with the neutral ports of Europe, and that it will omit no word or act to sustain its citizens in the exercise of their neutral rights."

He would go further and declare the diversion of American-owned cargoes of non-contraband goods an act "deliberately unfriendly." He would do this, he says, except for the fact that those words ought not to have been used in the note to Germany, explaining:

"An unfriendly act in diplomatic usage is an act of war, and very wisely the President was not given either the power or the discretion to say what act this Government considers cause for war."

Much feeling has been aroused by Secretary McAdoo's attempt to pave the way for the revival of ship purchase bill. The sentiment is strongly in favor of building up an American merchant marine. The overwhelming weight of opinion is in favor of encouraging private capital to create the cargo-carriers that are needed for the development of American commerce, and its safe conduct on the high seas, without possibility of interference from any powers that may be at war.

The Presidential situation is warming up, though there is hardly any evidence of it in the newspapers. That there is a ground swell of huge proportions, reaching across the country, is shown by the volume and character of the mail flowing into the office in New York of Henry Green, director of the Presidential Canvass Committee, which is trying out sentiment in all parties by distributing ballots broadcast throughout the country. The returns are full of surprises that promise to assume the proportions of sensations when revealed.

THE BEE HUNTER

"A frontier personage who has passed into oblivion with the water diviner, is the bee hunter. Sweets were a great rarity. Maple sugar and wild honey were the confections of the wilderness. The wild bees made their honey in the hollows of the tree and the bee-man was a wonderfully acute naturalist, who, by long observation of the exploits of bees, could tell in which tree the honey could be found. On his decision great trees were felled, even on a stranger's land to secure the coveted honey. One long, lanky bee hunter, who looked like a ferret, declared that "on a clear day I can see a bee a mile."—Julia Levering in "Historic Indiana."

sons I have mentioned.

Not only does a flat yolk, but also a thin white indicate an old egg. When the white breaks down, it is as much sign of age as air spaces in the shell or blood rings, the expert stated. The white often breaks down and mixes with the yellow from rough handling, he said. This is what is known as white rot.

At this season of the year the ear pays particular attention to egg candling, but at other times the operation of a typical dry cooling plant is also shown. The ear is fitted for such a plant and it was urged that poultry dealers familiarize themselves with it so that at some time they can put in such a plant to prepare their poultry for shipment. It is stated that within a year or so the present methods of refrigeration will have become obsolete and illegal and the new system must then be resorted to.

A small gasoline engine in the ear drives a dynamo which lights the ear and the egg candling outfit and also drives a large fan which draws air from the ice chamber throughout the ear. There are exits for hot air and inlets for the fresh air which is driven by the fan.

This is the season of the year when eggs go bad very quickly. The fertile eggs spoil quickest. This trouble could be largely eliminated, it was explained, if the farmers would sell the roosters in the flocks as soon as the hatching season was over. This would not diminish the number of eggs secured at all. Then when the new breeding season came around again a new rooster could be purchased or one from his flock used. Fertile eggs will begin to grow in a temperature of 68, which means that they do not have to be spoiled by hens.

The ear which was in this city today started on its present trip from New Albany May 27. For several weeks it stopped at points on the Indiana Southern Railroad and then switched over to the B. & O. and worked from Vincennes to Lawrence. It has lately started on the Pennsylvania Lines at Henryville and will work along this line until September 9. The egg candling work will then be stopped and all the time will be given over to the question of dry cooling poultry.

TO DECIDE "DOPE RING" CASE TODAY

Judge Deery Expected to Rule on Case Involving Violation of Narcotic Law

KING OWNER OF DRUG STORE

(By United Press.) Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 17.—Judge Deery in police court today was to answer the question whether Indianapolis has a "dope ring." The answer was to come in the trial of Lorenzo B. King, druggist, who is charged with having been the head of the "ring," which is said to have supplied its customers with cocaine for several years.

King was accused by two men, Fay De Witt and Myrtle Ward, whose testimony already has sent several men to the penal farm for long terms.

Although the women testified that they positively identified King as the man who sold them the dope, King denied that he recognized the women.

King's case was continued until today by Judge Deery, who wished time to deliberate. His drug store is near the union station on south Illinois street.

DR. KING SPEAKS AT CONVENTION

Address National Educators Declaring Little, Old Red School is Past Here

TELLS OF OUR ADVANCEMENT

Four Laws Since 1899 Are Chiefly Responsible For Indiana's High Position

(By United Press.)

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 17.—Delegates to the convention of the National Educational Association here today heard Dr. W. F. King, assistant secretary of the Indiana state board of health, tell what that state had been able to accomplish in a few years by the judicious expenditure of $8,000,000 for sanitary school buildings.

The "little, old red schoolhouse" is a thing of the past in Indiana, said Dr. King. In its place is the modern sanitary school building, in Indiana, according to Dr. King, has become "not only the civic and social center but the sanitary leader and guide of the community. Whenever a modern sanitary school has been erected," said Dr. King, "it has been followed by better roads, better home conditions and an awakened sanitary conscience."

"Such school building have cost money, but they have proved themselves to be not an expenditure but an investment, and they have returned to the communities making the investment a thousand fold in all that tends to the betterment of rural community life."

Dr. King illustrated his remarks with stereopticon views, prominent among which was a picture of the Froebel Building at Gary, reputed to be the finest school building in the United States. Compared with this he showed the dilapidated shack by the side of the road the like of which, he said, has disappeared in the Hoosier commonwealth.

Four laws, all enacted since 1899, are chiefly responsible for Indiana's progress in school building, said Dr. King. He added that supplemental rulings of the state health board which had been sustained by the state supreme court, had one their part for the state's good.

The four laws King mentioned were the "compulsory education law" (1899); the law of 1901 requiring township trustees to abandon schools when ever the average daily attendance fell to 12 pupils or below; the law of 1907 requiring trustees to provide transportation for all children attending consolidated grade schools and the law of 1911 known as the "sanitary school-house law," whereby Indiana became the first state in the union to establish a standard for sanitation for school buildings.

"As a result of these four laws the doom of the one-room district school was sealed," said Dr. King, "and the day of the centralized school with its superior advantages was established."

He said that in the past four years 570 new school buildings were erected in Indiana at a total cost of $7,195,008. In that period 199 school buildings were remodeled at a cost of $1,376,440. This year in Indiana there are under construction 132 new buildings at an estimated cost of $1,992,358.

ARTIC CEREMONY ENDS WITH SPRINT

Members of Eskimo Colony in This Country Married And Then Followed The Unusual

HE RACES FOR THE BRIDE

(By United Press.)

Ocean Park, Cal., Aug. 17.—With ceremonies never before seen outside the Artic circle, Miss Selalok, Eskimo belle of Etah, Greenland, was married here to Mr. Kauvechna, wealthy merchant of that place, by Rev. Baker P. Lee, rector of a fashionable Los Angeles church.

The bride and groom are both members of an Eskimo colony here. The first feature of their wedding was the issuance of invitations on the skins of short haired seals. In these "bids," Mr. Kauvechna modestly termed himself as being the richest man in the world, his loads of treasure being measured only in terms of codfish, blubber and whale oil. He sent invitations to the mayors of all cities near Ocean Park.

On the happy wedding day the couple was joined by Rev. Lee in the most approved legal American fashion. But that was only the beginning.

Next Mr. Kauvechna had to overhaul his bride in a footrace. Until he had done that, they were not wed, in the estimation of the Eskimaux.

So the race was on! The bride sprinted. The bridegroom sprinted. She ducked and dodged—right into his arms.

SUIT UNDER NEW LAW.

S. E. Newhouse and Son, owners of a local garage, have filed suit in the Shelby circuit court against Dr. C. E. Dunn to foreclose a mechanics lien, demanding $25. The suit asks for payment of work done on an automobile and is brought under a law passed by the last legislature providing for the taking of a lien on an automobile for work done on the car.

HOUSTON BECOMES PORT TOMORROW

Barbecue Planned in Celebration of Event—First Boat to Arrive From New York

HARBOR COST FIVE MILLIONS

(By United Press.)

Houston, Tex., Aug. 17.—Forty Texas beeves, the fattest that could be found, were killed, quartered and dressed today for the big barbecue tomorrow, when Houston becomes the newest of the world's seaports. The first steamship to carry a cargo from New York to Houston will arrive in Houston harbor at noon. She is the Satillo of the Atlantis, Gulf and West Indies Steamships Co.

The people of Houston are ready to make her arrival the occasion for the biggest celebration the city ever has held. The entire populace will gather along the banks of the new ship channel to welcome the freighter. Every person will be invited to eat his fill. Several United States and State officials will be present.

The new waterway reaches from Galveston bay 50 miles inland to Houston, bringing tide water that much nearer the heart of the Lone Star State. The channel is from 25 to 28 feet in depth and wide enough at its narrowest point for two ocean-going vessels to pass. Its construction cost approximately $5,000,000, shared about equally by the United States and a local navigation district.

The city of Houston is spending $3,000,000 more to equip the harbor with terminal facilities of the most modern type. Regular service will be inaugurated tomorrow between Houston and New York, with at least three steamers a month.

URGES THAT DAY BE CELEBRATED

Governor Ralston Issues Proclamation Declaring October 1 Disease Prevention Day.

WILL BE SECOND ONE IN STATE

Asks That Exercises be Held All Over Indiana to Emphasize Importance of Occasion.

Carrying out the provisions of a concurrent resolution adopted by the legislature last winter, which designates the first Friday in October of each year as Disease Prevention Day in Indiana, Governor Ralston has issued the following proclamation declaring Friday, October 1st a day to be observed in the public schools, by municipalities, civic and other organizations in a manner tending to arouse the entire commonwealth to the need for state wide effort against preventable disease.

A PROCLAMATION.

The unanimity with which the first official proclamation for a Disease Prevention Day, that of last year, was received by the general public, the public schools, the medical profession and the sanitary scientists and philanthropists, is of itself a sufficient warrant for issuing a second one in 1915.

The time was ripe for such an appeal on behalf of the public health. The work of voicing and giving practical direction to an already aroused public opinion, so auspiciously started and so greatly stimulated by that movement, was too valuable to be lost or relaxation of interest and effort at this time. Good health is always a paramount issue. It means sane minds, as well as sound bodies; self poise to the individual and safety to the state. In its last analysis it is the sheet anchor of a true and normal civilization.

Now Therefore, I, Samuel M. Ralston, Governor of Indiana, in consideration of these truths, do hereby designate and proclaim within the confines of said State; and I respectfully urge that such exercises be given in the public schools, and such action be taken by the various municipalities and civic and other organizations in Indiana, as will emphasize the importance of public health and the joint responsibility of all citizens therefor; and will inspire in everyone a desire to meet that responsibility by an active co-operation in all sane efforts for the prevention of physical disease.

Friday, October 1, 1915.

As

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Indiana, at the Capitol, in the City of Indianapolis, this 6th day of August, 1915.

(Seal) SAMUEL M. RALSTON,
Governor.

is the greatest inspiration a man can have and the life of the family, yet how many homes in this fair land are blighted by the ill health of wife and mother!

Describes Trip to Long Island

(BY E. B. POUNDSTONE)

One of our chautauqua lectures said: "Add to your present supply of knowledge; subtract all vice from your nature multiply your virtues; Divide your time and pleasures with others."

I have been as far north as Chicago, Detroit, Toronto and as far west as St. Louis but I have been waiting forty years to see the east, the mountains and the ocean—and if I can give your readers, who through varying circumstances have not been able to take a trip, half as much pleasure I received, I shall feel well repaid for attempting to write-up of the objects of interest I have seen. At Cincinnati we got aboard C. & O. sleeper for New York in time to leave at noon. We arrived in New York at one P. M. the next day going through the tunnel under the Hudson river at 33d street and landing in the great Pennsylvania station which cost, if my memory serves me right $37,000,000.

There we were met by our cousin J. Ross McKibben who had closed his home in Brooklyn for the summer and was living in a cottage at Sea Cliff Long Island. We soon got aboard a suburban train and after a twenty-seven mile ride and one mile by trolley we arrived at Sea Cliff. It is beautifully, picturesquely situated on Hempstead Harbor; the Cliffs are often two hundred and fifty feet high and I never before saw such views of land and water. Across the Harbor was to be seen the Connecticut shore, and in the harbor, where many yacht races take place, were anchored J. P. Morgan, Jr., and Millionaire Billings yachts in front of our Cottage. J. P. Morgan was shot at Glen Cove about a mile from Sea Cliff. The back porch of the cottage faced the harbor where at high tide the neighbors would ride up in boats and call the family out for a visit. The backyard was pure white sand and with bathing suits on it was but a step or two into the water.

Cousin Sarah had bought a bathing suit for Anna and she and Christian and Joseph the children did enjoy the bathing and then almost burying each other in the white sand. My cousin owned an automobile and one day we rode about a hundred miles. I think I got a fair idea of Long Island, which is 130 miles long and six miles wide on an average. It has over 1,000 miles of fine roads, the kind millionaires build; it has hill and vale, land vistas and water views, level stretches and forest crowned slopes and is I suppose without equal in America. It has the greatest suburban traffic in the world from the great Pennsylvania station handling as many passengers as 125,000 per hour. One day we rode through

Henry Payne Whitney Estate of fifteen hundred acres. The finest landscape gardeners obtainable had been employed and no expense spared to make it a dream of beauty. Mr. Whitney's wife was a Vanderbilt, is quite an artist and she designed the fountain in the Pan-American building at Washington, which I will try to describe later. We rode around Alford Vanderbilts Estate he you remember went down with the Lusitania; and mother Vanderbilt's estate is adjoining. Her castle was being remodeled at the time. It is said of one millionaire that not being satisfied with his private track he spent $250,000 for another—and it was told me some of them have as high as 30 automobiles in their private garage.

These Estate remind me of what I always thought an English Estate would look like; miles and miles of hedge rows neath trimmed; stone walls covered with honeysuckle and so sweet; box Yew trees trimmed in fancy shapes as I saw them in the reproduction of the Kensington Gardens at the St. Louis World's Fair; miles and miles of green verdure kept as beautiful as man and gasoline lawn mowers could keep it. The keepers are English, the houses the carts, the traps are English but the owners are not English. On one estate I saw apparatus for training horses for the steeple chase races for the hunting of the hounds.

Garden city, is a most beautiful place, here is built the Memorial Episcopal church to A. T. Stewart. It is a very fine building and his body, rests in the crypt. There were so many beautiful places that we visited that I can not remember nor describe them.

We visited the Aviation grounds, about twenty miles away, I suppose where flights are made daily and we were permitted to go through a part of the factory as Ross was known to them. Other parts were very properly kept closed to visitors. Heretofore Americans have been too free hearted and shown foreigners everything, oftentimes to their own hurt. The factory was making machines for Europe.

Nassau county is the richest one in the world and has in it 118 multi-millionaires.

While Col. Roosevelt was in San Francisco I was visiting and enjoying Oyster Bay, the harbor road, and the beautiful scenery, surrounding them.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is a sign you have been eating too much meat, which forms uric acid.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

6 Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

TO CELEBRATE THE CENTENNIAL

Newcastle Making Plans Already to Observe Admission of Indiana Into the Union.

100 YEARS OLD NEXT YEAR

Mayor Watkins Issues Proclamation Setting Aside July 21, 22 and 23 For Celebration.

Newcastle, Ind., August 17.—Mayor Watkins has issued a proclamation setting aside July 21, 22 and 23, 1916, for Newcastle to celebrate the admission of Indiana into the Union. Although a number of cities throughout the state are expected to fall in line, Newcastle has the distinction of being the first city to set the dates. Mayor Watkins had two or three objects in view in making his proclamation at this time. The first was in order to give all local people interested plenty of time in which to make arrangements, and the next was to get the slate set so that the chautauqua could figure on a date here that will not conflict. It is the plan to have a homecoming in connection with the centennial celebration and it is expected that instead of the celebration being simply a Newcastle affair, that it will include the entire county.

It is understood that a committee will be appointed by Mayor Watkins at an early date and it will be the duty of this committee to make the arrangements for the celebration. The merchants of the city are said to be back of the proposition, as it will mean a big thing for them. By using a good method of publicity, the matter could be brought before the public in such a way that when the time rolls around for a celebration that the city would be proud to have such an event here. The various women's clubs, lodges and civic organizations will be asked to get back of the plan and boost and by a thorough organization the matter could be made successful.

FIRE STARTED IN A GARAGE

Blaze at West Lebanon is Lesson to Prove Worth of Placing Gasoline Under Ground.

EXPLOSION STARTED FIRE

Two Men Who Suffered Heavy Losses Had Been Ordered to Safeguard Gasoline.

The State Fire Marshal department is in receipt of reports regarding property values of the big fire which threatened the destruction of the town of West Lebanon, Ind., causing losses aggregating approximately $20,000. Incidentally it develops that the fire started in the garage of Ira N. Crask, where gasoline explosions occurred.

A few days before the fire a deputy from the Fire Marshal department had placed an order requiring Mr. Crask to place his gasoline in underground storage. The files show that Mr. Crask expected to comply with the order but had not yet safeguarded his gasoline when the fire occurred.

Burt Cooley, a harness dealer in an adjacent shop was one of the losers by the fire. An order also had been placed on Cooley's shop and he had notified the State Fire Marshal that he would comply at once. Cooley carried no insurance.

Another lesson to be learned from West Lebanon fire is pointed out in the news columns of a local newspaper in the words—"The net loss was about $14,500, more than the price of a good water-works plant." West Lebanon is without a water-works system and the work of curbing the flames was not effective until apparatus was obtained from Danville, Williamsport and Attica.

It is believed the innovation being worked in the state in the storage and handling of gasoline will result in appreciable reduction in the annual fire loss.

This is the season when defects in flues should be corrected. Flues should be inspected at least once before cold weather sets in. Deputies from the Fire Marshal office are discovering defects in flues frequently where none was suspected. Defective flues caused a fire loss of $719,921 in 1914. They are more prolific of fires than any other cause except sparks from chimneys.

WAR TO BE SEEN IN INDIANA SOON

Spectacle at Speedway September 6 Will be For Benefit of Indiana National Guard.

AN ARMORY BUILDING FUND

Planned to Erect Armories First at Indianapolis and Then Elsewhere in State.

Indianapolis, August 17.—War in Indiana, dismissed as idle conjecture since days of '61, is soon to become a reality. "War in Indiana," in fact, is the title chosen for the huge war spectacle to be staged at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Monday, Sept. 6, for the armory building fund of the Indiana national guard.

Twenty-five hundred men are to engage in this production, the greatest of its kind the world has ever seen. The entire infantry of the Indiana national guard, three batteries of artillery, troops of United States cavalry, platoons of machine guns, and hospital and signal corps are to participate.

Every effort will be made to reproduce in detail warfare as it is at present waged in Europe. The trench fight, the attacks through barbed wire entanglements, the long range artillery duels, and the devastating fire of machine guns, all will be seen in operation at the speedway.

Many features, not ordinarily within the compass of the state troops, or the government forces that will take part, have been added by the management. An aviation squadron, trained by De Lloyd Thompson, the celebrated loop-the-loop expert, will do scout duty, while Captain Bumbaugh, the celebrated aeronaut, will sally forth on bomb dropping expeditions.

Armored motor cars, mounting machine guns, and driven by such noted racing drivers as Barney Oldfeld and Howard Wilcox, will inject themselves into the fray, the brick surface of the speedway being particularly suited to the movement of these heavy vehicles.

To make the scene as realistic as possible, European villages will be erected on the field of action, to be subjected to shell fire and finally blown into atoms through the concentrated action of artillery an aerial attacks. Mines will be placed through the grounds to shatter the columns of the invaders.

The proceeds of the spectacle are to form the nucleus of a building fund for the erection of national guard armories, first, at Indianapolis, and later, throughout the state. The Indiana legislature recently appropriated $20,000 for this purpose. It is the aim of the men behind "War in Indiana," not to use this money for Indianapolis, but to release it to other cities, throughout the state. The venture, therefore, is one of statewide import and appeal.

NO RESPONSES FROM MEXICANS

Villa and Carranza Each Have Pan-American Note But Have Not Answered it Yet.

LATER MAY AGREE TO CONFER

Secretary Daniels Orders Battleships Enroute to Mexican Waters to go to Vera Cruz.

(By United Press.)

Washington, August 17.—Responses to the Pan-American appeal calling on the Mexican factional leaders to end their civil strife were being awaited by administration officials today. No replies had reached the state department early today, although both Generals Carranza and Villa have received the communication.

That Carranza will make an unfavorable response to the appeal on the ground that foreign intervention would be unwelcome to the Mexican people is the belief of his representatives here. His friends assert he will say that he already has brought peace in a large part of Mexico; that he is in full control of that territory; that he is restoring order and that after removal of the capital from Vera Cruz to Mexico City he will consent to confer with the revolting factions. In other quarters, however, it was said that he might agree on a conference based on proportional representation.

Secretary Daniels has ordered the battleship Louisiana and New Hampshire en route to southern waters to proceed immediately to Vera Cruz, where they are due to arrive Wednesday to replace the gunboats Marietta and the Sacramento. The Marietta has been ordered to Progresso because of difficulty in getting American sisal shipments out of that port. Secretary Daniels reports had come from Vera Cruz plain that no further alarming and no trouble was looked for.

AGITATION IS REVIVED NOW

Many Favor Paid Fire Department
Following Damage Done to O.
M. Dale Home Monday

VOTED TO CREATE ONE

Ordinance Never Drawn up Through
Action Was Taken at Meeting January 19, 1915

Considerable agitation has been heard in favor of a paid fire department as advocated and planned by the city council, but never put through, following the fire yesterday which did considerable damage to the Oliver M. Dale residence.

On January 19, 1915 the city council instructed the city attorney to revise the present fire department ordinance by making a paid department of three regular men, the chief and a man to operate the fire engine. The members of the council, with the exception of Councilman Seudder, who did not vote on the proposition voted for the drawing up of such an ordinance.

It is pointed out that while the fire department did good work at the Dale fire yesterday, it could have done better had more of the firemen been on the job. The fire bell is not in working order but the fire alarm system works just the same. Yesterday the driver went to the fire without any assistance and it was necessary to depend upon volunteers. With a three-man department the work of fighting the fire yesterday would have been easier.

The plan as advocated by the council would be to do away with the volunteers. Three men would be stationed at the fire station all the time and these men, with the aid of the fire chief and the engineer for the fire engine should be able to fight most any fire, or at least as good as the ten or eleven volunteers do at present.

The criticism of the fire department has been friendly and the remark has frequently been heard that a city the size of Rushville should have a better fire department. It is pointed out that a fire department, the same as any other kind of an organization, needs a leader to successfully fight a fire. Yesterday Mayor Bebout took charge of the work, when it was learned that Chief Easley was out of the city. With a paid fire department the men would be trained and would know just what to do without having to wait for orders.

The motion for a paid fire department was made by Councilman Brann, who has since resigned from the council. Councilmen Lee, Mauzy and Wagoner were in favor of the change and it was urged by Fire Chief Easley. For some unknown reason the ordinance changing the fire department has never been presented although it has been discussed several times.

This Request is Made so Plant Will

The fire Monday at the home of O. M. Dale called to the attention of city officials the fact that so few people turn in the alarm when there is a fire. The city water and light plant has a gong which rings when an alarm is turned in, which is a signal for putting on fire pressure. Otherwise, it is not known at the plant when there is a fire. When firemen began throwing water Monday at the Dale home, the fire pressure was not yet on.

AUTOS COLLIDE AT ROAD INTERSECTION

Taylor Warfield is Rendered Unconscious and Jesse Guire Suffers Severe Cuts.

BOWEN MACHINE DAMAGED

A corn field shielding the view of a road was largely responsible for an automobile accident yesterday afternoon in which Taylor Warfield was severely injured and Will Bowen and Jesse Guire were badly shaken up and frightened. The accident also resulted in great damage to the Bowen touring car.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the two roads at Hawkins' Corner, south of New Salem. Warfield, Guire, and Bowen were coming north on the New Salem pike and because of the corn field failed to see Ed George approaching from the east in his machine. The George machine struck the Bowen machine a little past the center of the body and both machines turned completely around. The impact was terrific, both machines were badly damaged.

Mr. Warfield was rendered unconscious and did not come to for several hours. Guire was thrown over a barbed wire fence and sustained many cuts and bruises. Mr. Bowen escape uninjured.

ANOTHER SOLAR PLEXUS OF W. M.

Landed Farmers With Wheat Un-
threshed, Body Blow Monday
Night in Form of Bad Rain.

ONE OF THE PERSISTENT KIND

Average Farmer Approached About
Wheat Will Screw up Face
Into Hard Scowl.

When asked about his wheat nowadays, the average farmer screws up his face into a hard scowl and turns his head the other way.

The average farmer is one whose wheat is moulding in the fields. He thought he was going to have some fair weather this week, but he now has another thought coming. He has been thinking for two or three weeks that he would have enough sunshine to get his wheat threshed, but he has always been mistaken.

Every day it rains, Mr. Average Farmer thinks that it just can't rain any more and that will be the last one. He was certain Sunday and Monday that the rains were all history now and that he would save what was left of his damaged wheat crop. Wrong again.

It began raining Monday evening about dusk and rained hard until well into the night. It was one of those persistent, beating rains that keeps on regardless. It put an end to what threshing had been started Monday afternoon. According to reports reaching Rushville today, the rain was general all over Rush county and there were no threshing machines at work.

The bright sun of Sunday and Monday gave the farmer with his wheat unthreshed a new hold on life, as it were. He was overjoyed to think he had a chance of saving what was left of the much abused crop. He had visions of getting out better on the crop than he expected.

The same thing happened last Saturday. Many companies had expected to start threshing Sunday, but the rain stepped in and removed all chances of getting at the damaged wheat.

It was stated on good authority today that there was some wheat in the shock in Rush county that would never be threshed because it would not be worth the time and expense required.

If the present weather continues the entire corn crop of the state will be ruined, was the prediction made by a farmer living south of Rushville.

"The rain has caused the corn to shoot up over nine feet, and stalks are becoming top heavy. If the rain does not stop they will break off and the crop will be spoiled. Not only that the stalks have one to seven shoots, when they should never have more than two," said the farmer. "If there are a few good sunny days the crop may be saved, but if not their is no chance for it."

"Corn should have good, solid roots, and should grow up almost as thick at the top as at the bottom, with about fourteen leaves distributed evenly over it, but that is not the case this year. The corn stalks are thick at the top, with a spread of foliage, and thin at the bottom, and as a result they are becoming top heavy," concluded the farmer.

He recalled the fact that forty years ago Indiana suffered the loss of its corn crop on account of just such weather conditions have existed this summer.

The Pyman Sisters will hold a meeting tomorrow night. All members are urged to be present as business of importance will be transacted.

GET INFERTILE EGGS, SLOGAN

U. S. Department of Agriculture Experts Here Today Explain That
They Do Not Spoil Easily.

SHOWS GOOD AND BAD ONES

Experts Explain That Hen is Not
Causing $50,000,000 Loss Yearly, But Fault is in Handling.

"Remove the roosters from your flock and produce infertile eggs."

That is the slogan of the experts here with the egg candling, packing and chilling demonstration car sent out by the United States department of agriculture, which was on the siding at the water and light plant today.

"The hen is doing her part," said H. L. Shrader, who is in charge of the car, "but the people are at fault. The handling of eggs is responsible for the loss of fifty million dollars each year in the United States. The infertile egg is not so likely to go bad and that is the reason we are boosting the production of it."

"The failure to handle eggs correctly, to prevent loss contributes to the high cost of living. Grocers tell us they buy all sorts of eggs from farmers, candle them and discard the bad ones. Therefore, they lose money on eggs. They have to make it up on groceries. The farmer who has no eggs to sell thinks the groceries are high and perhaps may buy of a mail order house because he thinks he is getting goods cheaper."

The experts with the car put in a full day demonstrating egg candling. They had an interested crowd of spectators all day. Most all of the grocers visited the car some time during the day. There were some local grocers waiting for the car to open this morning at eight-thirty o'clock.

The experts showed how to candle eggs and how to tell when an egg is bad and when it is good. Housewives should know, it was stated, that when there is an air space in the egg and when the yolk flattens out after the shell is broken, the egg is aged. When the shell is broken, the yolk of a fresh egg will stand up in a semi-circle.

Blood rings appear only on fertile eggs. They are caused by the death of the germ and are a sure sign of age. The egg with a blood ring is not fit for food, it was stated during the demonstration. The germ of the fertile egg dies for the lack of heat when it is allowed to lie around in the weeds or some place in the barn.

It was explained that mouldy eggs are not fit for food; in fact, are dangerous to eat. The mould often penetrates to the white of the egg and causes it to turn green. The same germs cause this change, it was stated, as bring on gangrene in a wound.

"Often we are asked," said H. J. Sullivan, who was making the demonstration, "if a speck of blood on the yolk or in the white of an egg is cause for calling the egg bad. It is not. That blood comes from a broken blood vessel in the hen and is just as pure as the egg."

"It is often feared that a chocolate-colored yolk is impure, but it is not. The color of the yolk is due to the food the hen eats. If she is fed on red or yellow corn, her yolk will be dark yellow. If her feed is white corn or wheat, the yolk will be a very light yellow. When she has green food, the yolk is frequently a dark greenish yellow or chocolate. But green color in the white is especially to be avoided for reason."

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Dale have moved into the home of late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reeve until their home, which was damaged by fire Monday, can be repaired.

GALVESTON IS SAFE NOW

Water in Streets of Texas City Is Receding Rapidly.

(By United Press.)
New Orleans, Aug. 17.—Galveston is safe and the water in the streets is receding, according to a wireless message direct from Galveston received here today. The message estimated the loss due to the flood at more than one million dollars. Five persons were said to have perished. Two huge fires are now monopolizing the attention of the fire department. The government transport McClellan was reported to have been damaged.

AMERICAN REPLY IS MADE PUBLIC

Agrees With Germany That Each
Designate Expert to Fix Idemn-ities For Loss of Wm. P. Frye.

ACTION WITHOUT PRECEDENT

(By United Press.)
Washington, August 17.—The American reply to the German government on the case of the schooner William P. Frye, American merchant liner sunk by a German sea raider, was made public today by the state department. The United States, in its reply, agrees to the proposition of the German government that "each of the two governments designate an expert to fix the indemnities for the vessel."

Acceptance of such an arrangement is without precedent as the American contention was that the vessel was sunk without legal justification. The American government also submitted the Prussian-American treaty involved in the case to a board of arbitration under the Hague agreements.

"In this way," said the note, "the question of indemnities and treaties can partly be settled."

THOUSAND MAY HAVE BEEN LOST

British Transport Royal Edward,
Enroute to Dardanelles, Sunk
by German Submarine

OVER 1,400 ON THE VESSEL

(By United Press.)
London, Aug. 17.—One thousand lives are believed to have been lost yesterday by the sinking of the British transport Royal Edward enroute to the Dardanelles by a German submarine.

The Royal Edward carried 1,350 soldiers, 52 military officers and a crew of about 250 men. An official statement from the admiralty said "600 are known to be rescued."

The Royal Edward was sunk in the Egean sea Saturday, presumably while enroute to the Dardanelles. This is the second transport lost by Great Britain since the war began. In an engagement off the Turkish Asia Minor coast, near the Gulf of Smyrna, a transport was sunk several weeks ago, but without heavy loss of life, according to the admiralty statement.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Dale have moved into the home of late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reeve until their home, which was damaged by fire Monday, can be repaired.

LEO M. FRANK LYNCHED BY MOB

Young Jew Convicted of Murder of
Mary Phagan Spirited From
State Prison Farm Today.

NO CLEWS TO THE LYNCHERS

Frank Taken to Point Near Birthplace of Girl he Was Accused of Killing and Hanged.

(By United Press.)
Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17.—Leo M. Frank was lynched by a mob early today near Marietta.

The young Jew, who was recently convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, 15 years old, was taken from the hospital at the Milledgeville State Prison farm just before midnight after the guards were overpowered.

The lynching party speeded in automobiles to within a short distance of the birthplace of Mary Phagan and hanged him to a tree.

Angered because Former Governor Slaydon commuted Frank's death sentence to life imprisonment—his last official act—the mob, presumed to be composed of Marietta men, decided to take the law into its own hands.

The dead man's wrists were locked with handcuffs and laced to his body. The rope about his neck had broken open the wound where he was recently slashed by a fellow prisoner and blood had streamed down on his prison suit.

The chief of police at Marietta gave out the following statement: "No clews have been obtained to the lynchers. Every effort is being made to apprehend them."

While Frank's body was still dangling from the tree, no one could be found with authority to cut it down. The coroner refused to do so in the absence of the sheriff. Finally, shortly before noon, after a crowd of many thousand people in the automobiles and on foot had gathered for miles about the tree, the body was cut down.

Speeches were made. One man urged that the body be mutilated. Judge Morris spoke in opposition to this, urging that order be maintained.

After the enormous crowd had voted against mutilation, the body was lowered from the tree and lifted into a wagon which started for Marietta, where it was announced the inquest would begin at once.

But mutterings in favor of mutilation gained strength again. Judge Morris ran his auto alongside the wagon, lifted the corpse into his car and sped towards Atlanta.

Some two hundred autos gave chase.

At Smyrna a newspaper man leaped from Judge Morris' machine.

SPEED OF ALLIES DARDANELLES IN LANDING AT AMAZES GREEKS

Getting Foothold on Gallipoli Under Fierce Fire Took Forty Hours Instead of Seven Days.

Thrilling Operations Described in Dispatch Called One of Most Brilliant Acts in War.

A GRAPHIC and stirring description of the landing of the allied army at the Dardanelles is given in a dispatch from Athens by an American war correspondent who has seen the reports of the foreign military observers accompanying the British and French forces.
The general staff of the Greek army, he says, regards the achievement as one of the most remarkable operations of the war. The troops accomplished their landing in forty hours, forcing their way despite heavy losses under hot fire, while thousands struggled in the glare of searchlights and amid a terrific cannonade to put the supplies ashore.
In the reports of the military attaches two features are mentioned as standing out—the careful, systematic and detailed preparation, and then the surprising speed with which the disembarkation was carried out and the foothold on the soil seized.
The plan of action was arranged eight weeks before at a series of military conferences in London, Paris and Malta. Every detail of it went through without a hitch. Concentration of troops and supplies began immediately. Thousands of men left England secretly under cover of darkness, crossed the English channel and proceeded to Marseilles to embark on transports for Egypt.

Army Silently Formed.
At the same time those French troops that could be spared from Europe also were transported to the land of the Nile. Australian and New Zealand contingents reached Egypt through the Suez canal. Finally there were available more than 110,000 British troops, including Australians, New Zealanders and Indians, and about 60,000 French soldiers, including Algerians.
Simultaneously a monster staff was ransacking both countries for supplies. Every preparation was made for maintaining a great army for a long time on foreign soil.

Alexandria was the first advanced base. It is 700 miles from the Dardanelles. A nearer base was absolutely necessary. Consequently the British fleet suddenly occupied the islands of Mudros, Tenedos and Imbros. Tenedos is only twelve miles from Kum Kale and Suddel Bahr.
England asserts a right of occupation. Greece took the islands from the Turks in the first Balkan war. The London conference stipulated that the islands should be returned to Turkey. Turkey refused to sign the treaty, and then Greece consequently continued to occupy the islands. There was a mild Greek protest when the British took possession, but it was overcome. England promised to give back the islands at the end of the war and even yet the civil administration remains Greek.

Tenedos as Supply Depot.

A fleet of cargo boats freighted to the islands huge quantities of food, scores of heavy siege guns and thousands of boxes of ammunition. Although most of the supplies destined for the use of the troops after they landed in Turkey were taken to the islands of Tenedos and Mudros, the troops themselves remained in Egypt until the final rush for the Dardanelles.

When eventually one morning before daybreak the transports steamed out of Alexandria they made a line nearly eighteen miles long. The admiral at Mudros was advised by wireless. At Mudros and at Tenedos were stored thousands of tons of supplies. Every available warehouse was filled to the roof. Monster piles of boxes and bales extended along the beach. At once the work of loading hundreds of lighters, requisitioned from half the ports of the eastern Mediterranean, was pushed to completion.

A little less than forty-eight hours after it left Alexandria the fleet of transports, convoyed by a dozen battleships and half a hundred destroyers, passed Tenedos. Three hours later powerful tugs, towing long strings of lighters, steamed out of Tenedos and Mudros and fell into line many miles to the rear of the transport fleet.

Started at Daybreak.

Just at daybreak ten or twelve boats loaded to the gunwales with khaki clad soldiers wearing big tropical helmets, put off from each transport to be the first to land on the tip of Gallipoli. Steam launches from the battleships towed the boats to shore in strings of five or six. It was three-quarters of a mile to shore.
Half the distance had been covered when a perfect hail of bullets and shrapnel splattered among the small boats. The men did not reply. They could do nothing to fire at.
The boats were run up to the beach. The men jumped out, ankle deep in water. They ran up the beach for several yards and then threw themselves prone on the sand behind the first line of cover. They could not see the enemy, but they could hear the firing. The men remained in each boat until the transports had reached the beach and then they ran back to the transports, which took them to the shore.

and headed for the transports for another land.

Hour after hour men piled ashore from the transports. The line of disembarkment was more than a mile long.

The second detachment ran forty or fifty feet in advance of the first landing party before throwing themselves flat on the sand. The third party went the same distance in advance of the second, and so on.

At first the firing line was only a mile broad. It was gradually lengthened to cover the whole nose of the peninsula. Finally the line was more than two miles long.

The first detachment took terrible punishment. Dead and wounded were everywhere. The wounded had little show. There was no place to move them. They received rough first aid treatment and were dragged to the shelter of some small hills. They suffered greatly later in the day from the sun and heat. At the close of the day the medical corps got supplies ashore and erected temporary hospitals under the lee of a cliff.

Losses Were Terrific.

Every man was at last ashore, and an advance in open order was made. Slowly but surely the allies' army covered ground. The French had landed at Kum Kale, on the Asiatic side. That was only a trick to keep the Turks guessing as to where the real attack was to be made.

While the land forces were striving mightily to make their position secure the great battleships strung out from each end of the transport fleet thundered out fire and shell at a tremendous rate. The terrific bombardment and the vicious attacks of the Australian troops won the day. The Turks retreated behind their second line of defense. They left many dead and wounded on the field. They also lost many prisoners.

The British troops built rude breastworks and prepared to hold the captured ground at any cost. The first day's losses were terrific. More than 2,000 were dead.

When the position on Gallipoli peninsula became secure the big part of the disembarkment started. Great strings of lighters, piled high with all sorts of war materials, were beached. Thousands of sweating, swearing, halt clad men toiled frantically in the hot afternoon sun. As accompaniment they had the cheerful music of a dozen or more battleships banging away at the Turk entrenchments.

Many Fell Exhausted.

At dark the men juggling supplies were relieved. It was time too. They were nearly done for. Most of them dropped exhausted in the warm sand. Also there had been some suffering because of the water. Emphatic orders had been issued prohibiting men from drinking water from Turkish wells. All the water for the men came from the ships. The small boats were so occupied they had little time for water, consequently all the afternoon there was a constant cry for "water, water."

But the work did not stop. Thousands of fresh men leaped to relieve their exhausted comrades. At night half a hundred searchlights made the beach as light as day. The men worked in shifts. Toward morning the commissary got some portable kitchens ashore, and the men had breakfast.

The second day of the landing operations was, however, its real trial. From morning until dark 15,000 men worked to their utmost to get the last of the supplies ashore. Men struggled alternately with heavy siege guns and with barbed wire. The men at the front, frantically engaged in digging trenches, used up the barbed wire as fast as it could be taken to them. But the task was done.

Forty hours of terrible, life taking toil did not exhaust the time it took the British forces to land on the extremity of Gallipoli peninsula. It was really one of the remarkable incidents of the war. The operation was a marvel of perfection as to systematic preparation and execution. The Greek general staff had estimated that if the allies succeeded in landing at all the attempt would take them seven days.

MYSTERIES ARE MORE COMPLICATED

Suicide of Ebersole Monday Only Adds to Many Angles of South Bend's Two Murders.

MAY BE CONNECTING LINK

South Bend, Ind., August 17.—No new light has been thrown on either the Macklin or Logan murders, and, instead of clearing up South Bend's mystery, the suicide in his cell of Silas N. Ebersole, the former Dunkard minister, appears to have further complicated the case. Fred Runkert, county commissioner, has informed authorities Ebersole was in South Bend the night Cora Logan is supposed to have been murdered. The former minister was arrested the next morning at his farm near Bristol.

The police learned yesterday that persons answering the description of Ebersole and the Macklin girl were seen to enter the resort of Cora Logan in Vistula avenue, the night the girl is thought to have been slain. With this evidence at hand, the police hold that either Ebersole killed both the Macklin girl and the Logan woman, or had knowledge of both deaths.

JUST TO ANNOY THE SUEZ CANAL

That's The Purpose of Kaiser Keeping Small Number of Troops in That Region

ENGLISH MUST BE ON GUARD

Only Remnant Remains of Turkó—German Expedition Sent There Last Januray

BY HENRY WOOD
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Constantinople, (By Courier to Dedegatch and thence by mail to New York) July 16.—Somewhere down in the interior of Syria are several thousand German officers and men who must remain there either until the war ends or until Kaiser Wilhelm changes his mind. It is their duty to annoy the Suez Canal.

With neither sufficient men nor sufficient war material at their disposal to do any damage they must nevertheless make enough showing to force the English at all times to keep large contingents of troops in Egypt for the defense of the canal. They must hold themselves back in the desert out of harm's way, substituting as best they can, until a favorable moment presents itself. Then they must swoop down on the canal, and by capturing some lone vessel or in some other way obstruct navigation if only for a few hours. Then they must dash back into safety of the interior of the desert.

These men are the remnants of the tragic Turkó-German expedition which was sent last January against the canal.

As a recompense for their faithfulness an officer or a soldier is occasionally given permission to come up to Constantinople for a renewal of contact with civilization. From these officers and men I learned a few still unpublished details of the disaster of last January.

When the expedition finally approached the canal after having pushed its way across the desert for weeks carrying pontones for crossing the canal and transporting the bulk of its water in tin cans, the plan of attack decided upon was that usually employed by the Austrians. Simultaneous attacks were to be begun by the right and left wing in order to distract and engage the enemy and then the main body of troops comprising the center was to make the dash for crossing the canal.

To the surprise of all the attacks met with such little resistance that the center in its mad rush to get across did not stop to build a pontoon bridge but leaping into the pontoons themselves rowed to the other side. There the mystery was explained. Along the front of the canal were found whole lines of trenches which the English evidently had abandoned in haste at the approach of the expedition. Into these trenches the Turks piled and began at once establishing their position when suddenly the English artillery stationed miles away but having the precise range of the trenches poured into them a terrible fire.

A mad rush was made for the other side of the canal where the survivors gathering up their wounded and loading them onto camels pushed back into the desert to a point where Dr. Ward, head of the surgical department of the American protestant college at Beirut had come down with a Red Cross unit. There the wounded were taken care of until it was possible for them to return north.

and phoned his paper here, giving the alarm.

When the body was cut down, several men disregarded Judge Morris' pleadings and stamped on the face with their heels.

Many predicted a clean sweep of officials at Milledgeville prison. Although the prison was equipped with guards and protections to withstand a siege, the prisoner was taken without a struggle or a shot.

After waiting several hours for a report from the prisoner and receiving none, Governor Harris left for Fitzgerald where he is to make an address. He left before hearing that Frank was lynched.

He issued the following statement:

"I am both shocked and grieved. I feel that a great wrong has been done and that our state will not look with approval on such an act."

The armed men arrived in the vicinity of the prison farm practically unnoticed and proceeded methodically to their business. All means of wire communication from the institution of Milledgeville, three miles away, were destroyed and all wires, except one telephone line, from Milledgeville, also were cut.

Five men were sent to the house of Warden J. T. Smith, awakened him and made him prisoner. At the same time a small squad of men went to the home of J. M. Burke, superintendent of the farm, Burke was forced to go with them to the gate nearest the dormitory, where it was believed Frank was kept. The two guards on duty there were ordered, while guns were leveled on them, to open the gates.

The party then rushed in, quickly got Frank and hurried him to one of the waiting automobiles. He was forced down into the car, while a member of the party is said to have flourished a rope in front of him.

Without delay those who had been guarding Warden Smith left him and joined the party at the gates. The automobiles then started off swiftly in a northerly direction.

Milledgeville, Ga., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Leo M. Frank, though still prostrated, left here at 11 a. m. today for Athens, where an uncle lives. As she took the train she was told her husband had been lynched at Marietta. Apparently she was steeled for the news for she bore up well. A physician and nurse accompanied her.

She was told of his danger before it was known he had been killed. Before the prison officials could finish the first sentence, she swooned and went into violent convulsions.

It was only with greatest difficulty that she was revived.

Miss Louise Hogsett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hogsett, was hurried to Indianapolis Monday and underwent an operation for appendicitis. She was afflicted suddenly.

TO DECIDE "DOPE RING" CASE TODAY

Judge Deery Expected to Rule on Case Involving Violation of Narcotic Law

KING OWNER OF DRUG STORE

(By United Press.) Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 17.—Judge Deery in police court today was to answer the question whether Indianapolis has a "dope ring." The answer was to come in the trial of Lorenzo B. King, druggist, who is charged with having been the head of the "ring," which is said to have supplied its customers with cocaine for several years. King was accused by two men, Fay De Witt and Myrtle Ward, whose testimony already has sent several men to the penal farm for long terms. Although the women testified that they positively identified King as the man who sold them the dope, King denied that he recognized the women. King's case was continued until today by Judge Deery, who wished time to deliberate. His drug store is near the union station on south Illinois street.

DR. KING SPEAKS AT CONVENTION

Address National Educators Declaring Little, Old Red School is Past Here

TELLS OF OUR ADVANCEMENT

Four Laws Since 1899 Are Chiefly Responsible For Indiana's High Position

(By United Press.)

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 17.—Delegates to the convention of the National Educational Association here today heard Dr. W. F. King, assistant secretary of the Indiana state board of health, tell what that state had been able to accomplish in a few years by the judicious expenditure of $8,000,000 for sanitary school buildings.

The "little, old red schoolhouse" is a thing of the past in Indiana, said Dr. King. In its place is the modern sanitary school building, in Indiana, according to Dr. King, has become "not only the civic and social center but the sanitary leader and guide of the community. Whenever a modern sanitary school has been erected," said Dr. King, "it has been followed by better roads, better home conditions and an awakened sanitary conscience."

"Such school building have cost money, but they have proved themselves to be not an expenditure but an investment, and they have returned to the communities making the investment a thousand fold in all that tends to the betterment of rural community life."

Dr. King illustrated his remarks with stereopticon views, prominent among which was a picture of the Froebel Building at Gary, reputed to be the finest school building in the United States. Compared with this he showed the dilapidated shack by the side of the road the like of which, he said, has disappeared in the Hoosier commonwealth.

Four laws, all enacted since 1899, are chiefly responsible for Indiana's progress in school building, said Dr. King. He added that supplemental rulings of the state health board which had been sustained by the state supreme court, had one their part for the state's good.

The four laws King mentioned were the "compulsory education law" (1899); the law of 1901 requiring township trustees to abandon schools when ever the average daily attendance fell to 12 pupils or below; the law of 1907 requiring trustees to provide transportation for all children attending consolidated grade schools, and the law of 1911 known as the "sanitary school-house law," whereby Indiana became the first state in the union to establish a standard for sanitation for school buildings.

"As a result of these four laws the doom of the one-room district school was sealed," said Dr. King, "and the day of the centralized school with its superior advantages was established."

He said that in the past four years 570 new school buildings were erected in Indiana at a total cost of $7,195,008. In that period 199 school buildings were remodeled at a cost of $1,376,440. This year in Indiana there are under construction 132 new buildings at an estimated cost of $1,992,358.

Filled with men and machine guns, they will afford a spectacular illustration of the latest methods of modern attack and defense.

ARTIC CEREMONY ENDS WITH SPRINT

Members of Eskimo Colony in This Country Married And Then Followed The Unusual

HE RACES FOR THE BRIDE

Ocean Park, Cal., Aug. 17.—With ceremonies never before seen outside the Artic circle, Miss Selalok, Eskimo belle of Etah, Greenland, was married here to Mr. Kauvechna, wealthy merchant of that place, by Rev. Baker P. Lee, rector of a fashionable Los Angeles church. The bride and groom are both members of an Eskimo colony here. The first feature of their wedding was the issuance of invitations on the skins of short haired seals. In these "bids," Mr. Kauvechna modestly termed himself as being the richest man in the world, his loads of treasure being measured only in terms of codfish, blubber and whale oil. He sent invitations to the mayors of all cities near Ocean Park.

On the happy wedding day the couple was joined by Rev. Lee in the most approved legal American fashion. But that was only the beginning.

Next Mr. Kauvechna had to overhaul his bride in a footrace. Until he had done that, they were not wed, in the estimation of the Eskimaux.

So the race was on! The bride sprinted. The bridegroom sprinted. She ducked and dodged—right into his arms.

SUIT UNDER NEW LAW.

S. E. Newhouse and Son, owners of a local garage, have filed suit in the Shelby circuit court against Dr. C. E. Dunn to foreclose a mechanics lien, demanding $25. The suit asks for payment of work done on an automobile and is brought under a law passed by the last legislature providing for the taking of a lien on an automobile for work done on the car.

HOUSTON BECOMES PORT TOMORROW

Barbecue Planned in Celebration of Event—First Boat to Arrive From New York

HARBOR COST FIVE MILLIONS

(By United Press.)

Houston, Tex., Aug. 17.—Forty Texas beeves, the fattest that could be found, were killed, quartered and dressed today for the big barbecue tomorrow, when Houston becomes the newest of the world's seaports. The first steamship to carry a cargo from New York to Houston will arrive in Houston harbor at noon. She is the Sutillo, of the Atlantis, Gulf and West Indies Steamships Co.

The people of Houston are ready to make her arrival the occasion for the biggest celebration the city ever has held. The entire populace will gather along the banks of the new ship channel to welcome the freighter. Every person will be invited to eat his fill. Several United States and State officials will be present.

The new waterway reaches from Galveston bay 50 miles inland to Houston, bringing tide water that much nearer the heart of the Lone Star State. The channel is from 25 to 28 feet in depth and wide enough at its narrowest point for two ocean-going vessels to pass. Its construction cost approximately $5,000,000, shared about equally by the United States and a local navigation district.

The city of Houston is spending $3,000,000 more to equip the harbor with terminal facilities of the most modern type. Regular service will be inaugurated tomorrow between Houston and New York, with at least three steamers a month.

URGES THAT DAY BE CELEBRATED

Governor Ralston Issues Proclamation Declaring October 1 Disease Prevention Day

WILL BE SECOND ONE IN STATE

Asks That Exercises Be Held All Over Indiana to Emphasize Importance of Occasion

Carrying out the provisions of a concurrent resolution adopted by the legislature last winter, which designates the first Friday in October of each year as Disease Prevention Day in Indiana, Governor Ralston has issued the following proclamation declaring Friday, October 1st a day to be observed in the public schools, by municipalities, civic and other organizations in a manner tending to arouse the entire commonwealth to the need for statewide effort against preventable disease.

A PROCLAMATION

The unanimity with which the first official proclamation for a Disease Prevention Day, that of last year, was received by the general public, the public schools, the medical profession and the sanitary scientists and philanthropists, is of itself a sufficient warrant for issuing a second one in 1915.

The time was ripe for such an appeal on behalf of the public health. The work of voicing and giving practical direction to an already aroused public opinion, so auspiciously started and so greatly stimulated by that movement, was too valuable to be lost or relaxation of interest and effort at this time. Good health is always a paramount issue. It means sane minds, as well as sound bodies; self poise to the individual and safety to the state. In its last analysis it is the sheet anchor of a true and normal civilization.

Now Therefore, I, Samuel M. Ralston, Governor of Indiana, in consideration of these truths, do hereby designate and proclaim

Friday, October 1, 1915.

As DISEASE PREVENTION DAY within the confines of said State; and I respectfully urge that such exercises be given in the public schools, and such action be taken by the various municipalities and civic and other organizations in Indiana, as will emphasize the importance of public health and the joint responsibility of all citizens therefor; and will inspire in everyone a desire to meet that responsibility by an active co-operation in all sane efforts for the prevention of physical disease.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of the State of Indiana, at the Capitol, in the City of Indianapolis, this 6th day of August, 1915.

(Seal) SAMUEL M. RALSTON, Governor.
HOMER L. COOK, Sec'y. of State.

A Healthy, Happy Wife.

is the greatest inspiration a man can have and the life of the family, yet how many homes in this fair land are blighted by the ill health of wife and mother!

It maybe backaches, headaches, the tortures of a displacement, or some ailment peculiar to her sex which makes a life burden. Every woman in this condition should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, to restore her to health and happiness.

Describes Trip to Long Island

(BY E. B. POUNDSTONE)

One of our chautauqua lecturers said: "Add to your present supply of knowledge; subtract all vice from your nature multiply your virtues; Divide your time and pleasures with others."

I have been as far north as Chicago, Detroit, Toronto and as far west as St. Louis but I have been waiting forty years to see the east, the mountains and the ocean—and if I can give your readers who through varying circumstances have not been able to take a trip, half as much pleasure I received, I shall feel well repaid for attempting to write-up of the objects of interest I have seen. At Cincinnati we got aboard C. & O. sleeper for New York in time to leave at noon. We arrived in New York at one P. M. the next day going through the tunnel under the Hudson river at 33d street and landing in the great Pennsylvania station which cost, if my memory serves me right $37,000,000.

There we were met by our cousin J. Ross McKibben who had closed his home in Brooklyn for the summer and was living in a cottage at Sea Cliff Long Island. We soon got aboard a suburban train and after a twenty-seven mile ride and one mile by trolley we arrived at Sea Cliff. It is beautifully, picturesquely situated on Hempstead Harbor; the Cliffs are often two hundred and fifty feet high and I never before saw such views of land and water. Across the Harbor was to be seen the Connecticut shore, and in the harbor, where many yacht races take place, were anchored J. P. Morgan, Jr., and Millionaire Billings yachts in front of our cottage. J. P. Morgan was shot at Glen Cove about a mile from Sea Cliff. The back porch of the cottage faced the harbor where at high tide the neighbors would ride up in boats and call the family out for a visit. The back yard was pure white sand and with bathing suits on it was but a step or two into the water.

My cousin Sarah and I bought a bathing suit for Anna and sub and Christian and Joseph the children did enjoy the bathing and then almost burying each other in the white sand. My cousin owned an automobile and one day we rode about a hundred miles. I think I got a fair idea of Long Island, which is 130 miles long and six miles wide on an average. It has over 1,000 miles of fine roads, the kind millionaires build; it has bill and vale, land vistas and water views, level stretches and forest crowned slopes and is I suppose without equal in America. It has the greatest suburban traffic in the world from the great Pennsylvania station handling as many passengers as 125,000 per hour. One day we rode through

Henry Payne Whitney Estate of fifteen hundred acres. The finest landscape gardeners obtainable had been employed and no expense spared to make it a dream of beauty. Mr. Whitney's wife was a Vanderbilt, is quite an artist and she designed the fountain in the Pan-American building at Washington, which I will try to describe later. We rode around Alfred Vanderbilts Estate he you remember went down with the Lusitania; and mother Vanderbilts estate is adjoining. Her castle was being remodeled at the time. It is said of one millionaire that not being satisfied with his private track he spent $250,000 for another—and it was told me some of them have as high as 30 automobiles in their private garage.

These Estate remind me of what I always thought an English Estate would look like; miles and miles of hedge rows neatly trimmed; stone walls covered with honeysuckle and so sweet; box Yew trees trimmed in fancy shapes as I saw them in the reproduction of the Kensington Gardens at the St. Louis World's Fair; miles and miles of green verdure kept as beautiful as man and gasoline lawn mowers could keep it. The keepers are English, the houses the carts, the traps are English but the owners are not English. On one estate I saw apparatus for training horses for the steeple chase races for the hunting of the hounds.

Garden city, is a most beautiful place, here is built the Memorial Episcopal church to A. T. Stewart. It is a very fine building and his body, rests in the crypt. There were so many beautiful places that we visited that I can not remember nor describe them.

We visited the Aviation grounds, about twenty miles away, I suppose where fights are made daily and we were permitted to go through a part of the factory as Ross was known to them. Other parts were very properly kept closed to visitors. Herefore Americans have been too free hearted and shown foreigners everything, oftentimes to their own hurt. The factory was making machines for Europe.

Nassau county is the richest one in the world and has in it 118 multimillionaires.

While Col. Roosevelt was in San Francisco I was visiting and enjoying Oyster Bay, the harbor road, and the beautiful scenery, surrounding them.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Many backache is a sign you have been eating too much meat, which forms uric acid.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and lorry. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, also you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated; and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Blaze at West Lebanon is Lesson to Prove Worth of Placing Gasoline
Under Ground.

EXPLOSION STARTED FIRE

Two Men Who Suffered Heavy Losses Had Been Ordered to Safeguard Gasoline.

The State Fire Marshal department is in receipt of reports regarding property values of the big fire which threatened the destruction of the town of West Lebanon, Ind., causing losses aggregating approximately $20,000. Incidentally it develops that the fire started in the garage of Ira N. Crask, where gasoline explosions occurred.

A few days before the fire a deputy from the Fire Marshal department had placed an order requiring Mr. Crask to place his gasoline in underground storage. The files show that Mr. Crask expected to comply with the order but had not yet safeguarded his gasoline when the fire occurred.

Burt Cooley, a harness dealer in an adjacent shop was one of the losers by the fire. An order also had been placed on Cooley's shop and he had notified the State Fire Marshal that he would comply at once. Cooley carried no insurance.

Another lesson to be learned from West Lebanon fire is pointed out in the news columns of a local newspaper in the words—"The net loss was about $14,500, more than the price of a good water-works plant." West Lebanon is without a water-works system and the work of curbing the flames was not effective until apparatus was obtained from Danville, Williamsport and Attica.

It is believed the innovation being worked in the state in the storage and handling of gasoline will result in appreciable reduction in the annual fire loss.

This is the season when defects in flues should be corrected. Flues should be inspected at least once before cold weather sets in. Deputies from the Fire Marshal office are discovering defects in flues frequently where none was suspected. Defective flues caused a fire loss of $719,921 in 1914. They are more prolific of fires than any other cause except sparks from chimneys.

WAR TO BE SEEN IN INDIANA SOON

Spectacle at Speedway September 6
Will be For Benefit of Indiana
National Guard.

AN ARMORY BUILDING FUND

Planned to Erect Armories First at Indianapolis and Then Elsewhere in State.

Indianapolis, August 17.—War in Indiana, dismissed as idle conjecture since days of '61, is soon to become a reality. "War in Indiana," in fact, is the title chosen for the huge war spectacle to be staged at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Monday, Sept. 6, for the armory building fund of the Indiana national guard.

Twenty-five hundred men are to engage in this production, the greatest of its kind the world has ever seen. The entire infantry of the Indiana national guard, three batteries of artillery, troops of United States cavalry, platoons of machine guns, and hospital and signal corps are to participate.

Every effort will be made to reproduce in detail warfare as it is at present waged in Europe. The trench fight, the attacks through barbed wire entanglements, the long range artillery duels, and the devastating fire of machine guns, all will be seen in operation at the speedway.

Many features, not ordinarily within the compass of the state troops, or the government forces that will take part, have been added by the management. An aviation squadron, trained by De Lloyd Thompson, the celebrated loop-the-loop expert, will do scout duty, while Captain Bumbaugh, the celebrated aeronaut, will sally forth on bomb dropping expeditions.

Armored motor cars, mounting machine guns, and driven by such noted racing drivers as Barney Oldfield and Howard Wilcox, will inject themselves into the fray, the brick surface of the speedway being particularly suited to the movement of these heavy vehicles.

To make the scene as realistic as possible, European villages will be erected on the field of action, to be subjected to shell fire and finally blown into atoms through the concentrated action of artillery an aerial attacks. Mines will be placed through the grounds to shatter the columns of the invaders.

The proceeds of the spectacle are to form the nucleus of a building fund for the erection of national guard armories, first, at Indianapolis, and later, throughout the state. The Indiana legislature recently appropriated $20,000 for this purpose. It is the aim of the men behind "War in Indiana," not to use this money for Indianapolis, but to release it to other cities, throughout the state. The venture, therefore, is one of statewide import and appeal.

NO RESPONSES FROM MEXICANS

Villa and Carranza Each Have Pan-American Note But Have Not Answered it Yet.

LATER MAY AGREE TO CONFER

Secretary Daniels Orders Battleships Enroute to Mexican Waters to go to Vera Cruz.

(By United Press.)

Washington, August 17.—Responses to the Pan-American appeal calling on the Mexican factional leaders to end their civil strife were being awaited by administration officials today. No replies had reached the state department early today, although both Generals Carranza and Villa have received the communication.

That Carranza will make an unfavorable response to the appeal on the ground that foreign intervention would be unwelcome to the Mexican people is the belief of his representatives here. His friends assert he will say that he already has brought peace in a large part of Mexico; that he is in full control of that territory; that he is restoring order and that after removal of the capital from Vera Cruz to Mexico City he will consent to confer with the revolting factions. In other quarters, however, it was said that he might agree on a conference based on proportional representation.

Secretary Daniels has ordered the battleship Louisiana and New Hampshire en route to southern waters to proceed immediately to Vera Cruz, where they are due to arrive Wednesday to replace the gunboats Marietta and the Sacramento. The Marietta has been ordered to Progreso because of difficulty in getting American mail shipments out of that port. Secretary Daniels reports had come from Vera Cruz plain that no further alarming and no trouble was looked for.

They killed one trooper and wounded two. For a time it was reported that the Mexicans were advancing on Mercedes, but at midnight all had disappeared. Soldiers and posses are searching the brush for them.

TO CELEBRATE THE CENTENNIAL

Newcastle Making Plans Already to Observe Admission of Indiana
Into the Union.

100 YEARS OLD NEXT YEAR

Mayor Watkins Issues Proclamation
Setting Aside July 21, 22 and 23 For Celebration.

Newcastle, Ind., August 17.—Mayor Watkins has issued a proclamation setting aside July 21, 22 and 23, 1916, for Newcastle to celebrate the admission of Indiana into the Union. Although a number of cities throughout the state are expected to fall in line, Newcastle has the distinction of being the first city to set the dates. Mayor Watkins had two or three objects in view in making his proclamation at this time. The first was in order to give all local people interested plenty of time in which to make arrangements, and the next was to get the state set so that the chautauqua could figure on a date here that will not conflict. It is the plan to have a homecoming in connection with the centennial celebration and it is expected that instead of the celebration being simply a Newcastle affair, that it will include the entire county.

It is understood that a committee will be appointed by Mayor Watkins at an early date and it will be the duty of this committee to make the arrangements for the celebration. The merchants of the city are said to be back of the proposition, as it will mean a big thing for them.

By using a good method of publicity, the matter could be brought before the public in such a way that when the time rolls around for a celebration that the city would be proud to have such an event here. The various women's clubs, lodges and civic organizations will be asked to get back of the plan and boost and by a thorough organization the matter could be made successful.
